MESSAGE

Tourism in India has always been a sector of transformation, shaping livelihoods, strengthening cultural identity and positioning our nation on the global stage. As India advances toward the vision of Viksit Bharat 2047, tourism must be recognised not only as an economic driver but also as a force that shapes identity, fosters pride and connects communities across regions.

India's journey in tourism has been marked by campaigns that captured the imagination of the world. The Incredible India 2.0 campaign showcased our diversity to international audiences, while Dekho Apna Desh encouraged citizens to rediscover their own heritage. Initiatives such as Swadesh Darshan have further strengthened domestic circuits and destinations, ensuring that tourism flows reach deeper into regions often overlooked. Together, these efforts have contributed to the steady rise in Tourist Arrivals, a clear signal of India's growing appeal as a destination of choice.

The Divya Bharat anthology prepared by NITI Aayog builds on this legacy. By presenting destinations in harmony with the seasons, it offers a structured view of India's tourism landscape, one that highlights both iconic landmarks and hidden treasures. Looking ahead, the future of Indian tourism lies in high-value and experiential journeys, immersive experiences that go beyond sightseeing to engage with festivals, crafts, cuisines and communities that go beyond sightseeing to create lasting connections.

This anthology is more than a guide; it is an invitation to explore India in its entirety. By aligning destinations with the rhythm of the seasons, it encourages travellers to look beyond familiar circuits, discover unexplored wonders and engage with experiences that strengthen bonds and deepen appreciation for our diversity.

I commend the Tourism and Culture and Communication Division of NITI Aayog for this initiative. I am sure this work will inspire both citizens and institutions to see tourism not only as an economic activity but as a force for identity, pride and progress, anchoring India's journey toward Viksit Bharat 2047.

FOREWORD

India, with its rich and ancient history and heritage and diverse wealth of resources in the form of varied geography and culture is fascinating for tourism. It brings together landscapes, traditions and communities, offering travellers a chance to experience the rhythm of the nation across seasons. For many regions, tourism is not only a source of pride but also a pathway to livelihoods and local development. As India moves forward on its journey of growth, tourism must be seen as a sector that strengthens cultural bonds while contributing to inclusive prosperity.

The Divya Bharat anthology prepared by NITI Aayog is a distinctive initiative that captures this spirit. By presenting destinations across all 36 States and Union Territories in a unique month-by-month format, this anthology highlights the seasonal offerings of India's tourism landscape. It also brings together iconic landmarks, heritage sites and cultural festivals, while also drawing attention to lesser-known treasures that deserve recognition. Beyond this, the anthology includes detailed state-wise chapters that provide comprehensive overviews of tourism offerings in each State and Union Territory, covering heritage attractions, pilgrimage sites, nature and adventure experiences, handicrafts, fairs and festivals, cuisine, and curated tourism circuits, making it both a seasonal guide and thematic compendium of India's diverse travel experiences.

This anthology is designed to encourage exploration that is both balanced and meaningful. By showcasing opportunities throughout the year, it helps distribute visitor flows more evenly and enables inclusive tourism-led growth. It also reflects the importance of sustainability, ensuring that tourism development is sensitive to local communities, cultural traditions and natural environments.

I congratulate the team at the Tourism and Culture Division under the leadership of Shri Yugal Joshi preparing 'Divya Bharat'. This compendium will serve as a valuable resource for travellers, policy makers and stakeholders to create inspiring journeys that celebrate India's heritage and strengthen the role of tourism as a driver of economic growth.

PREFACE

India is a country where every season paints a different landscape, every month reveals a new shade of beauty and every corner holds a story waiting to be discovered. No other nation offers such astonishing variety within a single border: from the eternal snows of Ladakh to the coral atolls of Lakshadweep, from the living root bridges of Meghalaya to the silent dunes of the Thar and the mangrove labyrinths of the Sundarbans.

'Divya Bharat' is a year-long window to India's living soul. Each page opens a unique door, deserts breathe starlight, backwaters flash monsoon emeralds, mountains lift snowy veils, hidden valleys whisper their names and India calls you home. Across all 36 States and Union Territories, it pairs every destination with its perfect month, from Andaman's crystal seas in January to Rajasthan's starlit dunes in February, the Northeast's blooming valleys in March, Central India's summer tigers, Kerala's emerald monsoon and Ladakh's open roads, to winter's golden light across the plains.

Guiding the reader to the iconic treasures and the secret charms of each State/Union Territory, we quietly help tourism reach deeper. A homestay in Spiti, a boat ride in the Sundarbans, a meal shared with a family in Little Andaman, every rupee spent stays with the local communities. Young women and men in far-off villages become proud guides, hosts and storytellers. Fragile landscapes receive visitors gently, and popular sites find moments of calm. This anthology is therefore a small bridge between known wonders and hidden gems, between seasons and stories, between travellers and the people who call these places home.

My sincere thanks to the members and interns of the Tourism & Culture Division and Communication Division of NITI Aayog for their contribution, coordination and hard work at all stages of this anthology.

These pages are created to inspire everyone to explore more of India, more often and in seasons they may not have considered before. The objective of 'Divya Bharat' is to lead people to places they never knew existed and bring them home with stories they will carry forever.

INTRODUCTION

India's tourism landscape offers year-round experiences, where every month opens a window to new landscapes, living traditions and local flavours across its States and Union Territories. Conceived as a year-round companion, this anthology is a comprehensive repository that beautifully encapsulates the ever-unfolding journey of India, from iconic heritage landscapes to lesser-known attractions, festivals, crafts, cuisines and local stories.

How This Anthology Works-

Crafted to spark curiosity and enable smarter travel decisions, this anthology pairs a month-wise exploration map with state-wise tourism profiles, capturing India's celebrated attractions and its hidden gems across themes such as heritage, nature, pilgrimage, adventure, crafts, cuisine, festivals, circuits and seasonal experiences.

The first section is a Monthly Calendar, recommending best destinations in different states and outlining what to expect. Whether you're drawn to the monsoon-soaked beauty of the Western Ghats or the charm of the Himalayan winter landscapes, this section helps you align your travel plans with India's diverse seasonal offerings.

The second section includes State-wise chapters that provide deep dives into India's 28 states and 08 Union Territories, offering a comprehensive overview of the tourism offerings of each State/ UT, structured around key themes to guide immersive journeys.

- Places to Visit: Heritage Attractions such as centuries-old monuments, UNESCO sites, palaces, and forts; Pilgrimage Destinations featuring sacred sites for spiritual journeys across faiths; and Nature and Adventure encompassing pristine parks, forests, wildlife sanctuaries, biodiversity hotspots, and outdoor activities.
- Lesser-Known Attractions: Hidden gems for authentic, offbeat experiences beyond popular tourist trails.
- Handicraft and Textile Heritage: Artisan crafts like embroidery, pottery and traditional weaves at local markets.
- Fairs and Festivals: Vibrant celebrations capturing regional cultural rhythms.
- Cuisine and Culinary Heritage: Signature regional flavors, street foods, and delicacies.
- Best Time to Visit: Practical guidance on optimal seasons to experience each destination.
- Did You Know: Fascinating facts revealing unique regional stories and secrets.
- Popular Tourism Circuits: Curated routes connecting themed attractions.

Whether you are a domestic traveller seeking to reconnect with your homeland or an international visitor experiencing India for the first time, 'Divya Bharat' transforms planning into seamless discovery.

India awaits. Let this anthology guide you to experiences that will make you a part of India's unfolding tourism story.

- » Chidiya Tapu (South Andaman): Also called the 'Sunset Point', this forest-fringed beach is a great spot

Lesser-Known Attractions

Beyond the famous beaches and islands, the Andaman and Nicobar Islands hide several quiet, scenic corners ideal for offbeat exploration. These lesser-known destinations offer a blend of raw nature, tranquil villages and untouched coastlines that provide a peaceful, authentic island experience.

NORTH AND MIDDLE ANDAMAN

- » Rangat: A tranquil coastal town with mangrove-lined boardwalks and eco-tourism spots that promote nature conservation and birdwatching.
- » Shyam Nagar: Shyam Nagar is 155 KM away from Rangat surrounded by tropical forests and serene creeks, perfect for rural immersion and quiet stays.
- » Saddle Peak Foothills: While Saddle Peak itself is known, the foothill zones offer peaceful trekking routes and jungle scenery that remain uncrowded and serene.

SOUTH ANDAMAN

- » Munda Pahad Cliff Trail: Located near Chidiya Tapu, this forested cliff trail ends with sweeping sea views and offers a tranquil nature walk for hikers.
- » Wandoor Jetty Side Trails: Off the main beach area, the jetty-side forest trails offer mangrove views and a chance to spot marine birds in silence.
- » Humfreygunj: A quiet historical village with old war relics and a rustic coastal landscape that appeals to history lovers and off-grid travellers.

LITTLE ANDAMAN

- » Hut Bay: A calm port village surrounded by coconut plantations and known for quiet beaches and rustic charm - ideal for travellers seeking isolation and local experiences.

- » Kalapathar Lagoon (Little Andaman): Not to be confused with the South Andaman beach, this lagoon is a peaceful blue stretch with opportunities for kayaking and solitary relaxation.

NICOBAR ISLANDS

- » Great Nicobar Biosphere Reserve (Buffer Zones): While the core areas are protected and restricted, the buffer zones of this reserve provide glimpses of untouched rainforest biodiversity and unique island topography.
- » Mus Island (Campbell Bay Vicinity): A rarely visited island offering remote seclusion and chances to understand indigenous Nicobarese settlement patterns under guided supervision.

for birdwatching and tranquil evenings.

Key Activities: Birdwatching at sunrise and dusk; peaceful walks; watching vibrant sunsets

- » Kalapathar Beach (South Andaman): A picturesque beach with dramatic black rocks, white sand and turquoise water ideal for quiet reflection.

» Kalinjar Fort (Banda):

Perched atop the Vindhya Range, this formidable medieval fortress has roots dating back to the Gupta era. It withstood Mughal sieges (Sher Shah Suri died here in 1545) and offers panoramic views. Notable for its temples and sculptures carved into the hill rock, Kalinjar is a treasure for history enthusiasts.

» Jain Temples of Deogarh (Lalitpur):

A serene cluster of 31 Jain temples dating from the 8th to 17th centuries, renowned for its ancient sculptures and architecture. Deogarh also has an Archaeological Survey of India (ASI) museum on site, making it a quiet jewel of Bundelkhand's heritage.

» Kuchesar Fort (Bulandshahr):

A restored mid-18th-century mud fort of the Jat rulers, now operating as a heritage hotel. Surrounded by mango groves and a moat, it offers immersive stays – that evoke colonial-era and royal lifestyles

» Shravasti Ruins (Balrampur):

Once a key city in Buddha's time, the ASI-protected ruins of ancient Sravasti include Jetavana monastery remains, age-old stupas and relics that reflect the Buddha's legacy (he spent many rainy seasons here). It's a revered site for Buddhist pilgrims and history buffs alike.

» Salkhan Fossil Park (Sonbhadra):

Spanning 25 hectares in the Kaimur hills, this unique site (on UNESCO's tentative list) preserves 1.4 billion-year-old stromatolite fossils – offering visitors a rare window into Earth's deep geological past.

» Chunar Fort (Mirzapur):

Perched on a rocky cliff by the Ganges, this ancient fort dates back to at least the 11th century. It has seen rulers from Sher Shah and Mughal emperor Humayun to the British. Tour highlights include the Sonwa Mandap, Sun Clock and Mughal era halls - blending deep antiquity with colonial touches.

- » Najibabad Fort (Bijnor): Also known as Pathargarh or Sultana Daku's Qila, this stone-and-lime fort was built in 1755 by the Rohilla leader Nawab Najib-ud-Daulah. This ASI monument stands as a testament to 18th-century Mughal frontier architecture.

- » Barsana Jal Mahal (Mathura): Overlooking a sacred kund (lake) in Barsana - the heartland of Radha-Krishna lore - this 18th-century Jal Mahal (water palace) is being restored and developed into a boutique heritage destination. It reflects regional Braj architecture and will offer a tranquil cultural retreat.

- » Shukla Talab Haveli (Kanpur Dehat): Once a historic lakeside retreat (with a royal bathing pond), this site is slated for transformation into a vibrant heritage spot featuring wellness centers, cultural programs and dining-facilities, all while preserving its old-world charm.

- » Kanak Bhawan Temple (Ayodhya): Renowned for its ornate architecture, this palace-temple is associated with the legend of Kaikeyi gifting it to Sita. The current structure, built in the 19th century in a Bundeli style, is central to Ayodhya's Ramayana heritage and a must-visit for devotees and architecture lovers.

- » Deva Sharif (Barabanki): A heritage bungalow at the famous Sufi shrine of Dewa Sharif (Haji Waris Ali Shah's dargah).

Pilgrimage Tourism

- » Ayodhya: Revered as the birthplace of Lord Rama, Ayodhya is home to the Ram Janmabhoomi temple and countless other shrines. The newly built Ram Mandir attracts millions of devotees. The city, steeped in the epic Ramayana, offers ghats on the Sarayu River and temples like Hanuman Garhi, making it one of India's foremost spiritual destinations.

- » Varanasi: Often called the spiritual heart of India, Varanasi is famed for its riverside ghats where pilgrims perform sacred rituals on the Ganges. The Kashi Vishwanath Temple, dedicated to Lord Shiva and the mesmerising Ganga Aarti every evening at Dashashwamedh Ghat are major attractions in one of the world's oldest holy cities.

- » Sarnath (Varanasi): A crucial Buddhist pilgrimage site where Gautama Buddha delivered his first sermon. Sarnath features the towering Dhamek Stupa, ruins of ancient monasteries and the Ashokan pillar (Lion Capital of Ashoka) - all testifying to its significance as a center of Dharma.

- » Mathura: The birthplace of Lord Krishna, Mathura's Krishna Janmabhoomi Temple marks the spot believed to be Shri Krishna's birthplace. The town's many temples and ghats along the Yamuna, especially during Janmashtami, draw pilgrims from around the world.

- » Vrindavan (Mathura): The childhood playground of Krishna, Vrindavan is dotted with hundreds of temples dedicated to Radha and Krishna. Notable ones include Banke Bihari Temple and ISKCON Temple. The town comes alive during festivals like Holi and Radhashtami, offering an immersive devotional experience.

- » Prayagraj (Allahabad): Home to the Triveni Sangam-the sacred confluence of the Ganga, Yamuna and the mythical Saraswati, Prayagraj hosts the Kumbh Mela (and annual Magh Mela) where millions gather for a holy dip, symbolising spiritual cleansing. It also has grand historic temples and the majestic Allahabad Fort overlooking the Sangam.

- » Bithoor (Kanpur): A pilgrimage town on the Ganges linked to Lord Rama's exile. According to legend, Sita resided at the Valmiki Ashram here and gave birth to the twins Luv and Kush. The Valmiki Ashram temple and Brahmavart Ghat (where Brahma is said to have meditated) are key attractions.

- » Chitrakoot: Spread across UP and MP, Chitrakoot is venerated as the forest where Lord Rama, Sita and Lakshmana spent 11 years of their exile. Pilgrims visit Ram Ghat on the Mandakini River, the Bharat Milap temple, Kamadgiri parikrama and the caves like Gupt Godavari, reliving scenes from the Ramayana.

- » Gorakhpur: Known for the Gorakhnath Temple, seat of the Nath monastic order established by Guru Gorakhnath. This large temple complex is an important center for Nath yogis and devotees, especially during the annual Khichdi Mela. Gorakhpur also has the Gita Press adding to its spiritual significance.

- » Jasnathpur (Badaun): Known for the Jasnath Sampradaya sect, attracting followers interested in its distinct devotional practices.

Culture and Cuisines

Uttar Pradesh's culture is a vibrant tapestry of festivals, classical arts and historical legacies, while its cuisine delights with rich Nawabi flavors, spicy street foods and traditional sweets. Below are some highlights.

Culture

» Kumbh Mela (Prayagraj):

One of the largest religious gatherings on Earth, the Kumbh Mela takes place at the Triveni Sangam- in Prayagraj, where the Ganga, Yamuna and Saraswati meet. Millions of pilgrims bathe at auspicious times to cleanse sins and attain salvation. This mass event, held in a 12-year cycle (with the Maha Kumbh every 12th year and Ardh Kumbh/ Magh Melas in between), draws tourists, photographers and spiritual seekers from across the globe.

» Ram Navami Mela (Ayodhya):

Held in Ayodhya to celebrate Lord Rama's birth, this festival (around March/April) sees the city adorned with lights and flowers. Grand processions of Lord Rama's idol, continuous recitations of the Ramayana and rituals at major temples transform Ayodhya into a vibrant spiritual carnival. Devotees from all over India congregate, showcasing the enduring devotion and cultural richness of the town.

- » Krishna Janmashtami (Mathura-Vrindavan): Celebrated with immense zeal in Lord Krishna's birthplace Mathura and his playground Vrindavan. Temples like Banke Bihari and Krishna Janmabhoomi host midnight celebrations of Krishna's birth, with devotees singing bhajans. The tradition of Dahi Handi (human pyramids breaking a pot of butter) and performances of Raas Lila (dance-dramas of Krishna's life) offer tourists a vibrant, participatory experience steeped in Vaishnavite tradition.

- » Ganga Dussehra (Varanasi): This festival marks the descent of the holy Ganga from heaven to earth. In Varanasi, devotees take a dip in the Ganges and in the evenings, special Ganga Aarti ceremonies are performed on the ghats with ten lamps, creating an enchanting spectacle of lights and chants. It's a culturally rich experience for visitors as the entire riverfront glows with oil lamps and resonant hymns.

» Ramlila Performances (Varanasi, Ramnagar, Lucknow):

Ramlila, the dramatic re-enactment of the Ramayana, is staged during the Navaratri period across many towns. The Ramnagar Ramlila (across the Ganges from Varanasi) is among the oldest and most elaborate, with the whole town turning into a vast stage for a month. Similarly, in Kanpur, Lucknow and other places, Ramlilas culminate on Dussehra with the burning of giant effigies of Ravana. It's a unique cultural event that draws spectators from around the world.

- » Taj Mahotsav (Agra): A 10-day cultural fair held annually (usually in February) near the Taj Mahal, showcasing the rich arts, crafts, cuisine, music and dance of the region. Artisans set up stalls for handicrafts like marble work, zardozi and wood carvings. Folk musicians and dancers perform, giving tourists a vibrant dose of local culture in the shadow of the Taj.

- » Magh Mela (Prayagraj): An annual religious fair held every winter (Magh month) at the Sangam in Prayagraj. Pilgrims camp on the sandy riverbanks for a month of ritual bathing, religious discourses and devotions. It is essentially a mini-Kumbh Mela held every year, offering a slightly quieter yet spiritually charged atmosphere for visitors.

- » Bateshwar Fair (Bateshwar): A large cattle and religious fair held on the banks of the Yamuna at Bateshwar, which has a series of 100+ Shiva temples along the river. Taking place around October-November, it combines a livestock trading fair with a religious gathering for Kartik Purnima. The fair gives a fascinating insight into rural culture and devotion, attracting both pilgrims and tourists.

- » Nauchandi Mela (Meerut): A historic fair that has been held in Meerut since the 17th century to worship Goddess Chandi during Chaitha Navratri. It begins on the second Sunday after Holi. Nauchandi Mela features everything from handicraft stalls, rural cuisine, amusement rides, to qawwali and bhajan performances. Notably, a temple (Nauchandi Devi) and a dargah (Bale Miyan) share a common wall here.

Cuisines

- » Awadhi Biryani (Lucknow): A fragrant, delicately spiced rice dish cooked dum style with marinated meat (often lamb) and aromatic spices. Lucknow's Awadhi biryani, with its subtle flavors and saffron hues, reflects the royal culinary heritage of the Nawabs of Awadh and is a must-try for visitors.

- » Tunday Ke Kebab (Lucknow): Iconic melt-in-the-mouth minced meat kebabs, originally made by the one-armed chef Haji Murad Ali (hence Tunday). Blended with a secret mix of over 50 spices, these kebabs are so soft that they were said to be created for an elderly Nawab who had lost his teeth. Tunday kebabs are a quintessential Lucknow street food, served with ulta-tawe ka paratha (bread).

- » Galouti Kebab (Lucknow): Another Lucknawi delicacy – patties of finely ground meat, tenderised with papaya and enriched with aromatic spices. Legend says they were designed for a toothless Nawab. They literally galti (melt) in your mouth, offering a burst of flavor; often served at famed eateries.

- » Petha (Agra): A translucent, soft candy made from ash gourd (white pumpkin) boiled in sugar syrup. Agra Petha comes in many variants (like Kesar Petha infused with saffron, or Pan Petha flavored with betel essence). It is the signature sweet of Agra and tourists often take it home as a souvenir of their visit.

- » Bedmi Puri with Aloo Sabzi (Varanasi): A popular breakfast in Varanasi and much of UP – deep-fried wheat pastries stuffed with spiced lentil paste (bedmi puris), served with a tangy, spicy potato curry. It embodies the robust street food culture of Varanasi and is often enjoyed on the streets or in local eateries on a lazy morning.

- » Balushahi (Varanasi): A traditional North Indian sweet, Balushahi resembles a glazed doughnut but with a different texture – flaky and crisp outside, soft inside, soaked in sugar syrup. Often garnished with dried fruits, it's popular in Varanasi during festivals and weddings.

- » Malaiyo/Makhan Malai: A seasonal winter delicacy unique to Varanasi – it is essentially sweetened milk froth collected by leaving churned milk overnight under the dew. Flavored with saffron, cardamom and pistachios, Malaiyo is ethereal and foamy, served in earthen cups in the morning hours – a must-try if visiting in winter.

- » Imarti (Mathura): A bright orange, flower-shaped sweet made from urad dal batter, deep fried and soaked in sugar syrup (similar to jalebi but thicker and made in loops). Mathura's imarti is famous for its festive appeal, often served in fairs and religious events – crispy and syrupy, it delights those with a sweet tooth.

- » Thaggu Ke Laddu (Kanpur): A famously coined "Thaggu" (rogue) sweet from Kanpur – it's essentially a besan (gram flour) laddu enriched with khoya (milk solids) and nuts.

- » Korma (Lucknow/Rampur): A rich, creamy curry prepared with meat (or paneer/vegetables) braised in yogurt, ground nuts and fragrant spices. Uttar Pradesh's Mughlai heritage has perfected the korma – whether it's the cashew-laden white korma or the spicier red variant – making it a staple for those looking to savor royal flavours.

- » Nihari (Lucknow): A slow-cooked, spiced meat stew (traditionally made with beef or lamb shank) that was once the breakfast of Mughal nobility. Lucknow's nihari, often paired with kulcha or naan, is redolent with aromatic spices and is cooked overnight to achieve its tender texture and rich flavor. Many old city eateries in Lucknow still serve nihari at dawn, preserving this culinary tradition.

- » Rabri (Varanasi & Lucknow): A decadent dessert made by slow-cooking milk for hours until it thickens and layers of cream (malai) form, then sweetened with sugar and flavored with cardamom and saffron. Rabri is often served chilled in clay pots, sometimes with malpua or jalebi. Varanasi's street-side rabri (especially in Kachori Gali) is famous for its thick, grainy texture and rich taste.

Textiles & Handicrafts

Uttar Pradesh is renowned for its exquisite textiles and handicrafts, reflecting a rich artisanal heritage. From Lucknow's delicate embroidery to Varanasi's luxurious silks, the state's crafts are a testament to generations of skilled workmanship.

» Chikankari Embroidery: A delicate and intricate hand-embroidery style originating in Lucknow. Chikan work features floral and geometric patterns finely worked on lightweight fabrics like muslin, cotton, or chiffon. It was patronised by Mughal emperors and Nawabs for its elegance.

Key Areas: Lucknow and nearby rural areas (like Barabanki) are hubs for Chikankari artisans.

» Zardozi and Metal Embroidery: An opulent embroidery style using gold and silver threads (zardozi), often embellished with pearls, beads and stones. Zardozi flourished under the Mughals and is used to adorn bridal outfits, sarees and decorative textiles. Uttar Pradesh's artisans continue this legacy, blending it with modern designs.

Key Areas: Lucknow (for zardozi on textiles) and Varanasi (which also integrates zardozi in silk brocades).

» Banarasi Silk Weaving: World-famous handwoven silk sarees from Varanasi (Banaras) featuring intricate brocade designs with gold and silver zari. Banarasi sarees are prized heirlooms, often part of bridal trousseaus, known for their Mughal-inspired motifs (like floral kalga and bel and foliate patterns).

Key Areas: Varanasi is the epicenter; nearby areas like Mirzapur and Azamgarh also contribute with handloom clusters.

» Brassware and Metal Craft: Moradabad, known as the "Brass City," leads in production of brass artifacts - from engraved utensils and vases to modern décor pieces. Artisans craft traditional peetal (brass) items and also work with copper and bell metal to create lamps, figurines and utility objects. The detailed etching and enamel work on Moradabad brassware are especially renowned.

Key Areas: Moradabad for brass; other pockets include Varanasi (metal idols) and Lucknow (utility items).

» Glassware and Lacquerware: Firozabad in UP is famous for its glass industry, particularly for making beautiful glass bangles that are a staple of Indian adornment. Brightly colored lacquer is often applied on these glass bangles and other decorative items. Varanasi also produces lacquered wooden toys and miniature replicas of its temples and ghats.

Key Areas: Firozabad (for glass bangles, glass lamps, etc.), Varanasi (lacquer toys).

» Terracotta and Pottery: Uttar Pradesh has rich clay-craft traditions. Khurja (in Bulandshahr) produces glazed ceramic pottery - from tea sets to decorative tiles - in distinctive blue and other colors. Gorakhpur, on the other hand, is famous for its unglazed reddish terracotta figures (often of elephants, horses, etc.), a craft which has earned a Geographical Indication. These terracotta pieces are made with local clay and natural dyes, often depicting folk motifs.

Key Areas: Khurja (ceramics), Gorakhpur (GI-tagged terracotta) and Nizamabad in Azamgarh (black clay pottery).

» Wood Carving: The city of Saharanpur is synonymous with wood carving in India. Craftsmen here chisel exquisite jaali (lattice) patterns and floral designs into sheesham and teak wood to make furniture, decorative panels, jewelry boxes and even life-sized figurines. The fine craftsmanship has made Saharanpur wood furniture and handicrafts popular globally.

Key Areas: Saharanpur (for furniture, screens, decorative wood items), also Pilibhit and Lucknow have smaller woodcraft workshops.

Best Time to Visit

Peak Season

- » October to April (Pleasant, dry weather (≈10–25°C) makes this the ideal window for sightseeing, riverfront aartis, heritage walks and festivals (Diwali, Holi, Taj Mahotsav). Clear skies and comfortable days suit long itineraries across the plains.)

Non-Peak Season

- » May to September (Intense heat (often 35–45°C); lighter crowds and value pricing. Plan dawn/dusk outings, keep activities short midday, focus on air-conditioned museums and indoor experiences and enjoy peak mango season. Frequent showers and high humidity; lush, waterfalls (e.g., Lakhaniya Dari), wetlands brim with birdlife.)
